The human genome and the precipitous decline in prices to sequence it suggest an era of personalized advanced medicine is upon us. What are the new advances in medical and biotechnology that may come from our understanding of the human genome, and other technologies that have been developed in medicine?